Bugis Street, one of Singapore's largest street shopping district, was named after the legendary seafaring merchants from the island of Sulawesi. These maritime people were regarded as mastershipbuilders who travelled across the seas of the Indonesian archipelago collecting everything from sandalwood to spices, exotic feathers and even gold, to sell at faraway lands like Singapore.

Bugis Street was renowned internationally from the 1950s to the 1980s for its colourful night life filled with bazaar cultures, hawker food stalls and night clubs with trans women, a phenomenon which made it a unique tourist destination during its heydays.

Following a rather flamboyant history, Bugis Street was transformed in the mid '90s. Nowadays it is frequented by tourists and locals alike. Visitors revel in its street lined stalls, featuring traditional and contemporary artefacts, fashions, and eclectic street food. This thriving marketplace, along with the history of the Bugis people and their spice trade, influences the aromatic dishes enjoyed at Bugis Street Brasserie.
